The DEC Story

From its earliest days, this institution has strived to provide the skills and education necessary for its graduates to be a successful part of an ever expanding job market.

The history of Douglas Education Center (DEC) began back in 1904 when founder Warren Douglas decided to open a business and secretarial school in Charleroi, PA. It operated under the name Douglas Business College for the next 44 years until the state mandated the college to rename itself Douglas School of Business (DSB) in 1948.

In 1957, Douglas School of Business moved from Charleroi to the neighboring city of Monessen. When a devastating fire in the late 1960's destroyed the school's building, a new location had to be sought out. In 1970, DSB took up residence in the former Gemmill Hospital in Monessen, just a few blocks from its previous location. That building has remained a part of the Douglas campus ever since and now serves as the main administration building.

Since its inception, the school has seen multiple changes to its curricula. Douglas at one time offered a sixteen month Associates' in Specialized Business Degree in Business Administration and Executive Secretary. However, as job markets and employer needs changed it became clear that Douglas had to expand its offerings. In 1992, the first degree program outside of the business and secretarial field was offered. It was decided, with input and assistance from Mon Valley Hospital, that a Medical Assistant Program would be a welcome addition to the curricula and that program has been a part of Douglas ever since.

In 1998, it had become clear that Douglas School of Business had to find yet another niche outside of its current offerings in order to diversify itself from its competitors in the surrounding areas. DSB made a commitment to redefine and expand its market by implementing a more specialized curriculum that focused largely in the art fields. DSB's first art related program was added in 1999. The program was named the Graphic Communications/Visual Design and Animated FX Program. It has since been renamed the Graphic Design and Web Program.

The expansion into the arts continued in 2000 when Tom Savini signed on to be signator for the school's special make-up effects program. Now in its 16th year, the Tom Savini's Special Make-Up Effects Program has become known as a "destination" program and has graduated students from all 50 states. It has also attracted international students from Argentina, Belgium, Canada, England, France, Germany, Mexico, and Serbia just to name a few.

Since the name Douglas School of Business seemed to no longer fit the direction that the school was going, it was decided in 2001 that Douglas Education Center (DEC) would become the new namesake in order to further enhance the school's identity and image.

Allan and Wilson's Digital Illustration Program was the next art related program to come to DEC. It was introduced in 2002. In 2003, DEC decided to look beyond the arts and opened the doors to The Cosmetology Academy. These program offerings were designed to give students a well-rounded education in the fields of General Cosmetology, Esthetics, Esthetician and Nail Technology, and Cosmetology Teacher/Salon Management. The final wave of art programs was added in 2008 when DEC introduced Dorian's Fantasy Art Program and The Factory Digital Filmmaking Program. It was announced in the summer of 2016 that George A. Romero would become the signator for the rebranding of the Filmmaking program. DEC's strives to make The George A. Romero's Filmmaking Program another destination program for the institution.

DEC also expanded into the area of skilled trades in 2013 with the addition of its training programs for those seeking a Commercial Driver's License (CDL) or training in Natural Gas Extraction and Distribution Techniques. The latter program was modified in 2016 and renamed the Heavy Equipment & CDL with Safety & Natural Gas Program.

Today, what started out as a business and secretarial school housed in one building grew exponentially and now DEC spans eight city blocks. Today, over 113 years after its inception, Douglas Education Center continues to break new ground in academic achievement, staying true to its mission by providing a quality education to those who wish to follow their dreams.

HERE to HELP

Campus and student life is dedicated to helping students, staff and faculty experience DEC life to its fullest. We have a profound commitment to the diversity of our community and are focused on creating an environment where you can thrive. Through our wide array of programs and services, we provide opportunities and experiences that build community, help you grow personally and professionally, and create a place that you can call home now and throughout your life.

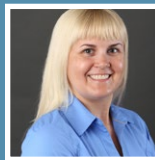

STUDENT SERVICES COMMITTEE

The Student Services Committee at DEC is the primary liaison between students and administration at DEC; it is the primary resource for information about student services. The Student Services Committee provides access to programs and information concerning campus life, special academic programs, disabilities, student organizations and publications, as well as personal and academic problems.

This is a time when students are developing their ability to function independently in the world. Some students may experience roadblocks in this process, and the Student Services Committee is here to help.

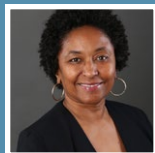

If long-term care or special treatment programs are indicated, we will refer to appropriate service providers.
